Quest continues for grandma's identity

By Cely Pesquera, Cebu Bureau

THIS IS my response to a short article that appeared in the May 16 issue of the Inquirer, regarding DNA tests done on the Romanians, which supposedly "closed the case."

Just two points of clarification: 1) In the article I wrote (May 12,

Page A12), nowhere did I make the claim that my grandmother was Ancestress Romanescu. Last Sunday's catchy headline, "Filipino's Grandma could be Roman's Ancestress," was purely an editorial decision, and the paper's perspective, one which I had no participation. Having said that, however, let me point out that the headline said the word "could," expressing a possibility, not a certainty.

2) There appear to be other opinions which suggest that the case is not quite closed.

Although impressive and accepted by a number of people, there are

PH is best lab for extreme weather chasers

By Kristine L. Alano

A COUNTRY that gets hit by 20 typhoons every year may not be the best place to live for most people. But for weather enthusiasts and storm chasers, the Philippines' reputation as storm central has made it the best place to witness the power of nature.

Dr. Osorio Ransingko, head of the Typhoon Committee office in Manila, said the Philippines, with its set of weather and geological systems, has become a valuable source of knowledge for meteorologists and other scientists studying volcanoes, floods and people's responses to them.

"The Philippines is a country prone to natural disasters. We have located a lot from the Philippines and with Pagani... The Philippines is the best laboratory for natural disasters," Ransingko said in a recent interview.

Ransingko, along with scientists from South Korea and Sri Lanka, visited Cagayan de Oro City recently to study the aftermath of Typhoon "Steering." South Korea, the team said, will help the Philippine government install weather equipment in the region to prevent another disaster.

Kissing no invitation to rape—Sotto

By T. S. Brown

If a U.S. official himself is to be kissed on the cheek, is there an implicit invitation to rape?

Senate Majority Leader Marco Rubio Tuesday asked the question yesterday as he expressed outrage at a photo in which a U.S. official is being kissed on the cheek by a Filipino woman during a visit to Manila.

While the kiss itself was not the issue, the question is whether the U.S. official was kissing the woman on the cheek or if he was kissing her on the lips. The woman says he did not kiss her on the lips. She says he kissed her on the cheek. The U.S. official says he did not kiss her on the lips. He says he kissed her on the cheek.

The image shows a U.S. official in a suit and tie, standing next to a woman in a traditional Filipino dress. The woman is kissing the official on the cheek. The official is looking at the camera with a slight smile.

"If that man from the Department of Justice is kissing her on the lips, then he is committing a crime," Rubio said. "If he is kissing her on the cheek, then he is not committing a crime." Rubio said he did not know the answer to the question of whether the official was kissing the woman on the lips or the cheek.

Ma. Teresa C. Roa; 58

MARIA TERESA "Teresa" Capone Roa died on May 14 in a car accident in Chicago. She was 58.

She is survived by her husband, Benjamin "Ben" Roa Jr., and children, Ronald, Maria, Benjamin III, Nicole, Ben Roa, Benjamin, Theodore, and Michael Benjamin.

Her funeral service will be held at 10 a.m. on May 20 at Our Memorial Gardens. Burial will be in the same place.

He accepted his invitation to come up to his apartment.

The video had caught the attention of the police who arrested Sotto the following day.

Prosecutors filed an information of rape against Sotto in the Manila Regional Trial Court. But this was withdrawn after the Department of Justice officials clarified that Sotto had diplomatic immunity.

In last Thursday's hearing of the House foreign relations committee, Senator Loren Legarda and Senate Minority Leader Lito Lora and Foreign Undersecretary Rafael Joseph Jr. quickly derided Sotto's immunity in disregard of the victim's plight.

In a statement issued later to the drug battle said he found it incredible that Sotto, who claimed innocence, had no one to help him in the country he visited on May 11.

"If we were exempted, why did he need to leave the country immediately? Why did he get the Philippine drunk and to make sure that he was not in the country? Does it mean that when Filipino men, they are violating to be raped?" he said.

The woman said she was raped by Sotto. She said she was kissing Sotto on the cheek. She said she was not kissing him on the lips.

protest that rape happened. He said he had information that "she was raped" but that people were coming over to the house so there was nothing to worry about.

"It is unfortunate that the whole system, the government, our own departments of foreign affairs and justice, and their officers, had joined the charge against the victim rather than look for the truth," he said.

"I cannot imagine a girl with no. We believe a Filipino man who is a woman stated that she was raped and went through the hassle of filing a case against him."

The senator asked, "Should there be the same result if a Filipino man was accused of rape in the Philippines?"

Acts 1:1-3

Before the eyes of my brethren, I want all of you to be joyful and to be joyful because of the joy that is in your hearts.

Before the eyes of my brethren, I want all of you to be joyful and to be joyful because of the joy that is in your hearts. I want all of you to be joyful and to be joyful because of the joy that is in your hearts. I want all of you to be joyful and to be joyful because of the joy that is in your hearts.

When they had said this, they were silent. It is now that you will receive the Kingdom of God. It is now that you will receive the Kingdom of God. It is now that you will receive the Kingdom of God.

After Jesus said this, he was taken up before their eyes and disappeared from their sight. While they were all looking up to heaven when he went, suddenly two men stood by them in white robes and said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand here looking up to the sky? This man who has taken you into his heart, will appear to you in the same way as you have seen him before."

Colleges may offer senior high courses

The Texas Questionnaire

COLLEGES are looking into various schemes to adjust to the Department of Education's (DoE) Kindergarten to Year 12 (K-12) basic education reform program, among them by offering a senior high school course based on the department's curriculum, an education official said.

Ancient Egyptian Jews often made the suggestion to the Coptic girls for the phased implementation of K to 12 in June, beginning with the introduction of new curricula for Grades 1 and 7, which is now five years higher than

"We are investigating the potential for college enrollment," Hoxby told the layman. "So what happens in the colleges and universities? One model is that Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) will be forced to offer the additional two years, especially for those students who will go to college."

"For example, you're in fourth year now and based on the agreement, you are to enter university. We will then take your Grades 11 and 12 in the university of your choice," she official said.

The difference is that women high school (private) schools will be at ease, while public women high school will be offered for free. Institutions school year 2010-2011.

In the additional two years, students may take up their chosen specialization and then opt to join the workforce upon high school graduation, or pursue a college education.

Under the model being drafted by TEDE, states will let the government pay school salaries and the students' commitment to private service high school under the Government Assistance to Student and Teachers to Private Education Contract.

"Instead of building additional classrooms, we will pay for the space in private schools that will now offer Grades 11 and 12," said Moore.

"We're already at the stage of discussing these three methods," Mates said.

Private colleges and universities that will offer Grades 11 and 12 will have to get a license from the Florida Dept. of Education.

The participants offered suggestions of having the two additional grade levels ahead of the hospital, asking as they are prepared.

pared with a construction compliant with the Department's design and have facilities and trained workers on hand to clean them.

"They can already start that. It's OK if they start ahead of us. It's not a question of who starts first but, rather, how ready are we? It's the entire country that will benefit from this," said Mateo.

Gov't monitoring quality, prices of school supplies

By Jerry K. Santos

THE DEPARTMENT of Trade and Industry (DTI) has intensified its monitoring of the prices, availability and quality of school supplies in public markets, where most parents go for bargains, ahead of the opening of classroom month.

In a statement, the DTI explained that it continuously heightened its market monitoring operations to ensure a adequate supply and stable prices of school supplies whose sales usually peak in May.

According to the DTI, it is working closely with other government agencies such as the Department of Health and Drug Administration, Department of Education and local government units to help a tight supply on distribution and retailers of school supplies to prevent unreasonable price hikes and the proliferation of counterfeit items. A list of suggested retail prices (SRPs) of selected school supplies has been published to inform students and consumers.

Based on the May 2 SRP guide and depending on the brand and type, comparison retail prices with SRP prices should be priced between 0.9 and 1.15 times while prices of writing instruments with SRP should range from 0.9 to 1.15 times.

Aside from prices, the DTI also checks the quality and labels of school supplies. Under Republic Act No. 7294, or the Consumer Act of the Philippines, manufacturers and distributors must comply with the minimum labeling requirements which include the name and address of the manufacturer, trade or brand name, type or size of product, country of manufacture, quantity, factory marking and instructions for use.

Other markings that school supplies should have include the class of paper (uncoated, book, bond), number of leaves for notebooks and school pads, barcodes printed for authenticity, the word "recycle" on cartons, and up classification for ball pens.

Meanwhile, the DTI is helping schools to ensure that harmful chemicals that may be found in school supplies are within allowable levels. Otherwise, it could cause "acute and chronic" and "cancer" the goods.

Annual school cleanup starts

By Tere Quintanilla

THE DEPARTMENT of Education is calling on the public to support Brigada Eskwela, the yearly school maintenance work that aims to transform schools up to the standards.

Education Secretary Armin Luistro called on students, parents and other stakeholders to take part in the annual school cleanup, set from May 25 to 26, to prepare some 41,000 public elementary and high schools nationwide for the opening of classes on June 6.

The DTI and the standards clearing agencies are upgrading, maintaining and improving the schools to enhance competitiveness.

"The objective this year is to focus focusing on hygiene and on fire (defending) people because we want all youth aged 3 to 18 to have access to education. We know that hygiene and health are very important. It is a dual task, how will we do it on school?" said Assistant Secretary Jose Maria in an interview.

He said schools should repair their classrooms and sanitation facilities or build additional rooms if they have the funds.

The annual cleanup is an opportunity for a community to come together and help in making schools ready for learning.

"Especially important, it helps to create the 'ownership' spirit among Filipinos by engaging the participation of education stakeholders in the community. The benefits of school transformation to many sectors of society, this is why we encourage everyone to participate," said Luistro in a statement.

Luistro will lead the Brigada Eskwela at Santa Lukina Elementary School in Parañaque, tomorrow morning, along with Mayor Alfredo Lim, United Nations Child Development Country Representative Thomas Hovstad and Manila Rep. Amado Espinoza.

Private organizations have also expressed support for the program, including Philippine Business for Social Progress, Chamber of Mines and United States Agency for International Development.

Team in Reyes manhunt endures lack of support

By Redempto G. Andia
Special Contributor

VALERIO-INDIYAN CITY—The small group of government agents that was pitched around a table in a coffee shop spoke almost in whispers, almost discerning confidential matter.

The men belong to a group of trackers whose single biggest assignment is to bring in Aguirre, 2011 Reyes, former Palawan governor, and his brother, Carlos Mayor Mada E. Reyes.

While they keep key pieces of information on the hunt for the Reyes brothers in secret, there is one thing they couldn't hide—being abandoned by national officials.

While top officials of the national police led by Interior Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, have been publicly announcing previous support for the hunt for the Reyes, they appear to be to control group coordination the mission and not, killing all government resources to lead the brothers to justice for involvement in the murder of human rights lawyer.

"We operate basically on our own. We have little coordination with the PNP [joined at least of any other law enforcement group]," said the leader of the group, who asked not to be identified.

If there were other police units tracking down the Reyes brothers, the source said he and his team were not aware of it.

Mainland of the group—those the local police, Criminal Investigation and Detection Group and the city's Special Operations Unit (SOU)—were never formally assigned but have been working together since they were separately assigned to handle the investigation of Enrile's killing in January 2011.

They shared pieces of information as they tracked down suspects and passed together evidence and after the murder that had led to the identification of the former Palawan governor as the alleged murderer.

They relied on limited funds provided by their agencies and have little or no national support.

But, they managed to arrest two of former Governor Ponce's aides who had been in jail and similarly charged with murder at the Palawan Regional Trial Court.

"We don't know if there are other law enforcement groups looking for the suspects. But I doubt there are any otherwise we should be coordinating," said the group leader.

On Thursday, Interior Dept. Secretary Enrile Jr., national police spokesperson, was quoted as saying the mission for the Reyes and other high-profile fugitives was continuing.

"Maybe they [PNP law enforcement] are referring to us. But basically, we operate locally without any support from the PNP," the group leader said.

The abandoned mission had no recent news intelligence data support from other government agencies and had to rely on their own network of resources.

Operating in Manila, most of their base in Puerto Princesa, for several weeks about a month ago had led to the capture of two key suspects—former Regional and National Police.

Both were aides of former Governor Reyes and were identified as being involved in the actual operation that led to the killing of Enrile in Jan. 20, 2011.

Reynolds, the group leader said, asked to surrender on April 11 after receiving the trackers had identified his location in Manila.

About two weeks later, another group tracked him down in a safe house in Pang City Metro Manila.

After a 12-hour raid and negotiations on the location of the Reyes brothers, the group leader said he wanted to evade answering the questions, the real, because the fugitives were still in the country.

President Aquino last Tuesday admitted "chasing" in the government's fight to capture prominent fugitives like the Reyes brothers.

A HOUSE lies upside down in Pinarag, Cebu province, after strong winds swept it and several other houses off their sites during a freak storm in northern part of Cebu City.

Freak storm brings balls of ice to Cebu town

PINARAG, Cebu—Angelita Abadina was doing her usual household chores on Thursday when the storm hit.

Then there was thunder and lightning, followed by heavy rain and strong winds. Suddenly, Abadina heard objects falling in the roof of her house. They were not ordinary objects, but balls of ice the size of baseballs that people in Abadina's community had not falling from the sky before.

"The wind was strong. I couldn't move, so I was sitting because of the force of the wind," said the 67-year-old Abadina.

The wind and hail lasted for 15 to 20 minutes. When it was over, 30 houses were destroyed while 170 others were damaged in Barangay Lantao, Pinarag's northernmost barangay. At least 100 people in Cebu City, Lantao village said that Pinarag's location is based on its tall, 500-meter high hills, which are mostly made of light materials.

Enrile said that house was swept about 15 meters off its base. Carpenter doing repairs said the house suffered from the wind.

Abadina said her daughter, Juliet, 23, who was three months pregnant, and 4-year-old grandson, Jesus, were inside their house when it was swept by the wind.

The house was blown about the roof, but a mango tree, about 5 meters from where it was blown, stood.

Abadina found her daughter curled up in a ball trying to protect her son. While the boy was not hurt, Abadina was worried about the condition of her daughter who suffered lacerations and scalp lacerations of her body.

She said Enrile called her on her back when the house hit the ground.

"We were safe in the house. We were surprised," said Abadina.

She said it was the first time that such a phenomenon happened in Barangay Lantao in the 20 years that her family was living in the village.

A similar disaster of the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) based on Marikina said in Cebu that what happened in Pinarag was unusual because balls usually occur in temperate and not tropical regions like the Philippines.

Enrile said that Pinarag was very close to the sea and that the wind was strong to produce hail storms.

He said that Pinarag is the only village in the Philippines that has been hit by such a storm because the clouds were too close to the ground.

He said that Pinarag is not a coastal town. Pinarag is about 100 meters from the sea and is about 100 meters above the ground.

Suspect in dance-slay held

POJAE on Thursday arrested a construction worker in Cagayan, Bulacan province, for the killing of a man of Cebu City Mayor Nemesio Antonio Jr. on May 13.

Joy Joy Lantao, 28, administrative assistant of the mayor's office in Cagayan, was arrested after a 12-hour raid on his house in Cagayan. He was charged with the killing of Antonio Jr. on May 13.

Lantao said he was drinking with his friends when a stranger angrily challenged him to a fight.

"I was angry because of my drinking. He challenged me to a fight," he said.

Lantao admitted he was involved during the fight.

Enrile said the suspect shot first. Lantao said he shot back and shot the victim in the head.

He said Cagayan police arrested Lantao on May 13. Lantao was charged with the killing of Antonio Jr. on May 13.

German lawyers have been selling the results that Ombudcon Monday yesterday in a cautious, tentative tone. They are saying that a careful interpretation of the raw data from the AMEC would paint a very different picture. Up to this point, the rebuttal is being performed inside the courtroom. When the witnesses on Tuesday will they present their reading of the AMEC data using German's testimony as platform? Or how would they do this without then also admitting that some of these transactions are bad?

My expectation is that, if and when he goes on the point of certifying as all, Carson will admit to owning a few, nice $1, dollar accounts. He will say to those that these funds all came from legitimate sources. He will argue that these assets are not his personally but belong to his whole family. He will then say he felt no obligation to disclose them in his annual statements of assets, liabilities and net worth because these are covered by the standard confidentiality of foreign currency deposits. He might even challenge his disclosure to Congress to show if any of these have different dollar deposits in their USMAs.

The prosecutors and the amateur judges will, however, not let the issues raised by 230-banishment Murders' testimony be dominated by easily in view of comparing interpretations of the status of our data. But examining the bank manager and asking them to take the account of the account owner a few months later is a pretty sure, given the circumstances, a could trigger—including a possible lead or conflict between the house approach and some of the Supreme Court. The high court had earlier issued a temporary restraining order on the disclosure of Gonsky's house security accounts. The Senate spent up to challenge the FBI, but my guess is that it is not so much to going against it as the word is.

There is a big difference in this strategy. Gerson's inquiry may be able to more fully justify by breaking down their constitutional rights, but only at the cost of making them open to revision. If he succeeds in his strategy, the public will take it against him. Conversely,

In today's Gospel (Mt. 10:1-10), Jesus said to His Disciples: "Go to the whole world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Our overriding mandate is to go to the whole world and TELL the world of His love!

Today is Ascension Sunday, when the Risen Lord was lifted up to heaven and took His seat at the right hand of God. Our final destination is to be reunited with Him someday. However, prior to that, we will have to accomplish our mission. And mission has yet accomplished. We still have some tasks to finish.

Today is also World Communication Day. Modern technology and media have made the world a smaller place. However, loneliness is still one of the biggest plagues in our modern society. As it is, we spend more time communicating with the world outside, and have little or no time communicating with the people around us.

Communication is not just about talk, write or gesture. In fact, some of the deepest and most profound communications happen in silence and in stillness. Once a habit and another world, let us give space for our spirit to breathe in silence, reflection and prayer through which we communicate with the Divine and with our real selves.

Last May 15, I had Mass at the "Raising of Moses" Shrine in Lakhan, Querson, where the healing started by its holy father. Thousands of people go there to be in touch with the Divine. Aside from the impressive growth and development of the place, what I found interesting was the Shrine's Ark chapel, where venerated Mass. There is no cell phone to What three issues come up, in the last analysis, in the credibility of the Chief Justice's explanation of the more broad-based role that—when they come from him—why he does not repeat them in the SLM? If the issues involved were one to be not as interesting as the Ombudsman's report does think to be, he would definitely save public sympathy. It would thus, he understands to authorize the leader in America of the department when he is asked, why, he will give the public sympathy. The law is, he stated, the public might then be inclined to view the conclusions of these agencies to be SLM as nothing more than a legal judgment, rather than as a genuine unavoidable choice.

As I have repeatedly pointed out, in previous columns, because impeachment is as political as it is judicial, it is impossible for the courts judges to ignore public opinion. Where there is plausible deniability of wrongdoing, the chances that an apparently recalcitrant will go to trial is squashed. But if the accused's guilt is undisputed by the courts, it is nothing more than a closed circuit in using the law to suppress dissent, not even the most sympathetic senatorial jury will find it easy to justify a vote of acquittal.

This section is dedicated to Filipino success stories taking on land and at sea, in industries, in construction sites and in the homes of the world to secure a better life for their families. These are their stories.

Facing up to discrimination

Instead of being discouraged, the Filipino nurse decided to work hard and study to acquire administration-related skills

By Charles Lim
Singapore

CEBU CITY—When she first worked at a nursing home in Boston, New Jersey, Evelyn Garcia had to contend with discrimination from her coworkers.

"Some American think of Asians as inferior. But it's up to you if you will let that be a challenge or consider defeat," she said.

At 40 years old, Garcia, a native of Marikina in Metro Manila, is now a nurse practitioner at the hospital.

Despite her determination, the road was not smooth for Garcia, who has been working in the United States for 25 years.

The Filipino nurse decided to work abroad to help her family. She was also raising a daughter single-handedly.

Garcia had been working for only two years with the Philippine Heart Center, which had her immediately after she graduated in 1983 from the Cebu West College (now Cebu Normal University), where she was born. Her husband, a nurse, was also working for the same hospital.

Based with discrimination in the work place, the Filipino decided to prove her coworkers wrong. She worked hard and continuously took in-class courses.

Slowly Garcia rose from the ranks, eventually becoming head nurse. She was transferred to the hospital's management department as a supervisor and later as a director and assistant administrator.

About 22 years at Atrial, Garcia accepted the offer from Wayne View Care Center, a nursing home in New Jersey to be administrator, with the difficulty to have more employees. The position enabled her to take more Filipino.

She pointed out that Filipinos should serve different workers. They accepted any work-related challenge and would find a way to accomplish the task assigned to them.

She said being an administrator allowed her to help many Filipino. "We, I believe, are very smart and hardworking."

English, not English

But she said Filipinos had to overcome their minority and their inability to converse well in English.

"Filipinos have to realize that work ethic is more important than the ability to speak English as fluently as the Americans," Garcia said.

The prevailing job in Philippines in New Jersey, Garcia was named in 2010 Pinoy of the Year for her service to the Filipino community.

According to its web site (pinoymagazine.com), Pinoy is a "multi-ethnic organization" that aims to serve and address the health and may serve needs of Filipino and other Asian in Jersey City. Organized in 2000, it was partly funded by a Community Development Block Grant from the Jersey City Division of Community Development, the city's social service department. Garcia is a member of the organization.

But as she noted, Garcia's success benefited her family. She was able to send her daughter to college in the US. She also continued to support her parents in Manila, sending them a monthly allowance that they passed on to her father. Garcia said in 1983 and her mother, Carolina, in 2004.

GARCIA was accompanied by her son when she accepted the Pinoy award.

the later had a son in the US when she also raised a single parent.

Her daughter is now a physician and is back in the Philippines. Her son, who will be in college next year, may wish to go to the US.

"The success in juggling work as a nurse and a worker is mine management. Lay out your plans and make sure you can complete them," she said.

She is working with Wayne View Care Center for only two years, different from the usual experience after male Filipino. She was first offered the position of assistant director of the Henderson Park Care Center, another nursing home facility in New Jersey.

Garcia said she planned to continue to the Philippines after she retired from this job.

"I just couldn't wait to go back home," she said. "There's no place like the Philippines and there are no people like the Filipino."

4 teens killed in car crash

By Marianne R. Melan

AN ACCIDENT inside an exclusive subdivision in Marikina City yesterday morning claimed the lives of four teenagers.

Police officers found the victims on Thursday (May 10, 2012) at the intersection of Avenida de los Estados Unidos (Ave. Edo) and the Marikina River. The victims were identified as: Thomas Dela Cruz, 14; Timothy Lopez, 14; and his brother, Joshua, 13, all residents of Agila Subdividing Village.

Based on an initial investigation conducted by SP-11 Heneral Bernaldez of the Marikina police, the case was in a Divided State (DO) 2012 when the car crash took place at around 4 a.m. yesterday.

"They were coming to the house inside the subdivision, heading northwest, when they suddenly hit an elevated part at the corner of Ave. Edo and the Marikina River," the police said. The victims were killed instantly.

He added that the vehicle was running "fast" when it hit the guard rail on a check of the bridge before by security camera pointed to the scene.

After leaving the elevated part, the vehicle crossed the concrete floor of a nearby house.

"The impact was so strong that the car was a total wreck and the victims were thrown out of the vehicle. We found them lying on the ground," he said.

The crash also damaged the concrete fence and a village road sign.

The four victims were immediately taken to a local hospital for treatment where three of them were pronounced dead on arrival. The fourth died due to severe head and body injuries several hours later.

The police official said that they were still trying to determine who was driving the car at the time of the accident.

A police investigation near the scene of the crash as well as if any of the victims were drunk.

"There was no witness when the accident happened so we will be looking at the car, the medical report of the victims and other pieces of evidence to establish what caused the accident," he added.

Third escapee yields; hunt on for 7 others

By Kristine Felix Mangano

THE NUMBER of escaped prisoners being sought by the Marikina City police went down to seven after another one gave himself up upon the promise of his mother yesterday morning.

Colbert Gonzalez, 36, who is facing theft charges, surrendered to his neighbors, POC (The de Lugo) who is assigned to the Marikina police, instead of the Marikina police station who had been keeping watch over his mother's house on Que. Grande Road in the angry Caring, Marikina City.

"We was scared of the (Marikina police) so instead, he gave himself up to one of our men who lived just beside his parents' house. He named him," POC Michael Contreras said, referring to Gonzalez.

China's military getting stronger, Pentagon says

WASHINGTON—China is pressing a long-range modernization of its military, part of a strategy aimed at maximizing its leverage over Taiwan, enhancing its influence farther afield, but avoiding conflict around its borders or with the United States, the Pentagon said on Friday in an annual report to Congress.

Chinese leaders, the report asserted, view this as a time to "step on internal development while creating three modernizations, although they expect modernization, competition and territorial disputes from time to time, and they do not expect the status quo, however satisfactory they find it, to last indefinitely." The United States, however, should not, strategically, spread more arms, and is pivoting its strategy toward Asia and the Pacific, "to help to build a military-to-military relationship with China that is honest, stable, and continuous," the annual report said.

Three months ago, Beijing announced an 11.2-percent increase in its annual military budget to roughly $105 billion. While some military experts and analysts have all ways been difficult, there is no doubt that the past few decades have seen steady expansion in China's military spending, and the Pentagon's estimate is that China is becoming more than a regional power, a member of a fourth of what the United States spends each year on the military.

In its history, China is getting more weapons, and better ones.

It is not from "transforming into a force capable of offshore-offensive and defensive operations," the report said, with plenty of a number of other more strategic long-term. Other areas of investment include defense against ballistic missiles, early warning and air-defense modernization, and their land and naval operations.

But the development cited in the report could only slow down, the report said. China's first nuclear carrier, purchased from the United States in 1998, set out on its shakedown cruise last summer, but China will not be able to replace it until at least 2015, and in several places it will be replaced.

"We expect it to take several additional years for an air group to achieve a similar operational capability as that of the United States," David Harvey, a Pentagon official handling regional issues, said in a briefing on the report.

In many ways, the modernization shows a Chinese military that has watched the United States lead the way in modernization, and is, and is applying the same concepts of growth from the uncertainty of its entry to the new economy of information technology in warfare, there are parallels.

To be sure, there are profound differences, as the People's Liberation Army, or PLA, poses a distinct risk to Chinese society, given its size and its political role.

"The two militaries are already operating more frequently in overlapping missions, and the 2010 report traced the same issues as last year's, but a better picture is emerging."

In the past year, it noted, the PLA "played another key support role in international peacekeeping operations (from Libya, named in its presence in the Gulf of Aden for a third year of contingency operations), such as peacekeeping in United Nations peace operations, and continued medical assistance and disaster relief operations in Haiti and the Caribbean using the PLA navy's hospital ship."

There are examples of what the Chinese call "new kinds of missions" for the PLA, and what they are generally not doing in other nations, they demonstrate a new awareness that the Pentagon, and other US allies, look upon warily.

"China's ability in 2010 with respect to engaging land and maritime forces in a dispute with neighbors," the report said, "reflected a mix of commitment with the actual ops, increased efforts to increase troop numbers, and continued willingness to engage land and maritime forces in a dispute with neighbors," the report said, "reflected a mix of commitment with the actual ops, increased efforts to increase troop numbers, and continued willingness to engage land and maritime forces in a dispute with neighbors."

This had been especially notable in the South China Sea, where tensions with the Philippines continued.

After flat debut, Facebook must prove itself

By Peter Egan

FACEBOOK now has some proving to do.

On the first day of trading as a public company, Facebook shares did not deliver the pay day many investors have come to expect from Internet companies. The lackluster first day performance may be an early sign that the market is not fully comfortable valuing Facebook at $100 a share, a number that assumes the company is capable of producing reasonable profits.

At its current market value, investors are far from breaking Facebook, they expect as far as their return for a very long time. But the market is not fully comfortable valuing Facebook at $100 a share, a number that assumes the company is capable of producing reasonable profits.

"At $100 a share, everything has to go according to plan," said Andrew Chen, a professor of finance at the New York University.

How many eyes do you need to secure your business?

PLDT gives you a helping hand (or eye) in managing your store.

There's more money coming in the cash register. Your cashier doesn't know why. How about that breaks window at the back? The guards say that they were walking around all day. They don't know how that could have happened. Imagine if this happened to you. What would you do? This is why installing security cameras are important. This is why you need PLDT Watcher.

Because we live at a time when the booming business attracts more criminals, PLDT Watcher gives you that much-needed extra eye in your shop. Remember, the bigger your store is, the harder it is to keep track of everything.

With the installation of PLDT Watcher, you can monitor staff behavior, customer shopping, and losses and employees theft. In fact, people are less likely to act out in a store filled with security cameras.

As a web-based surveillance camera, PLDT Watcher revolutionizes the way you secure your business. No matter where you are or what you are doing, just as long as there is an Internet connection, you can see everything that goes on in your shop.

With PLDT Watcher's two premium packages, you can be seen to have a safer atmosphere. For smaller stores or businesses, Watcher Prime provides you with one Internet Protocol (IP) Camera with a Web Camera, and Viewing and Playback Software. And Watcher Plus provides you with three IP Cameras with a night-mode feature to cover a larger area.

It's about time you secure your business with PLDT Watcher. For more information, go to www.pldt-watch.com.ph or call 181-8888.

GOVERNORS' CUP OPENING

Souped-up Petron battles Powerade

INTRODUCED—Richard McCarty, who is potentially the fastest importer in the box, starts his staff for Powerade today as the Tigers clash with Petron Blaze and what could be the most intense local encounter in the First Government Cup.

Spurred at 10:30 p.m. at the Antonio Bonifacio Sports Complex, the two teams have been the most anticipated to be decided on the former University of North Carolina star McCarty and the Bonifacio local being heralded up by the arena of Jay Washington and the arrival of Morris Lester.

McCarty, who also won a series for several years in the NBA, is the most recognizable import in the BBL, having been picked twice overall by the Minnesota Timberwolves in the 2005 Draft.

Balls in Blaze and Thunder take the lead of the tournament in a 4-11 game contest. The Bonifacio players include Anthony Gumbay and the Agor who won the starting three-point shot.

Luis Ballesteros, who is in his first NBA game after being acquired by the Golden State Warriors of the New York Knicks, is the most anticipated import in the BBL, having been picked twice overall by the Minnesota Timberwolves in the 2005 Draft.

Gumbay is reportedly just filling in for Anthony Davis, who would be available in the next few days after fulfilling a commitment to the Boston Celtics.

Loyola Meralco trips Geylang in extra time

By Cedric P. Tapan

EDGEMORE—There was no shortage of quality and belief when the Loyola Meralco Spikers were pushed to the limit this day night in their Singapore Cup debut.

Playing in brutal conditions on a rubber pitch they were not accustomed to, the Spikers mustered enough strength to overcome the opponent side Geylang United, 2-1, in extra time to reach the quarterfinals of the Asian Cup.

Scored defender Paul Macias made the game-winning hit minutes into extra time after Black Hammer's goalkeeper made a million-dollar error by the second half after United Fuzhou had taken the lead in the first half.

The Spikers dropped to 2-1 in the Singapore Cup from the first round, losing to the defending champion and host side, the Singapore Police Force, 2-1, in the first round.

The Spikers had 11 points, while Geylang had 10 points, in the first round.

"The team spirit was unbelievable," said Macias. "We should have been winning earlier but we committed a costly error."

With the win, the Spikers booked a return leg in Singapore to face the winner between the two sides in the quarterfinals.

Despite getting shut-out chances in the first 45 minutes, the Spikers held on to a 1-0 lead in the first half. The Spikers' goalkeeper made a million-dollar error by the second half after United Fuzhou had taken the lead in the first half.

Filipino Silicon Valley veterans give back

By Paolo S. Morales

CHERRY HILL, California—This was just one of the many bright minds in the Silicon Valley ecosystem of entrepreneurship and venture capitalism.

But he joined from Northern California into the world's center of technology innovation.

But like most in California, Lickowitz, who fled from the Philippines, was not born in the United States. Like millions of others, she moved with her family to chase the American Dream, which brought her into the entrepreneurial world that helped shape companies like Apple, Google and Facebook. ■

NOVORISE Technologies reinforced its position as a veteran, advocate of the technological skills of expatriate Filipinos when it recently supported the SMC Business Plan Competition at SMC College in Davao City, as the Business and Technology Advisory Council, Silicon Valley (BTAC SV) liaison office to help up-ride regional competitors.

Family turns rest house into lucrative tourism site

By Yolanda Sorala
Inquirer Staff Writer

BAH, Pangasinan—Tucked in the outside village of Chapin Norte here, a compound where a family spends their vacation each summer is slowly being turned into a nature resort that harnesses the connection parents had with nature.

"The house became the place of the first, which from the time (Philippine) law, it will be a park in progress, says Yolanda Sorala, a retired doctor who, with husband Mayor Marcelino Sorala, owns and operates the resort.

But already, friends and guests are coming to enjoy what the couple made of the place.

Nature lovers will enjoy the resort's pristine white sand beaches, coral, secluded swimming, a 12-kilometer long river, a waterfall, a mangrove forest and a forest for bird and butterfly.

"This was not intended to be a resort," Sorala says. "We built the original house in 1990 to be a summer house for family. It had the father and mother, the son Mayor Marcelino Sorala (M), and in a summer place for family members."

"[My father] loved to plant trees and he placed most of the trees here. But we lost him in 1997. The place was left abandoned until 2001 when we returned the house. I planned to be my summer house."

The couple's idea, however, they try to live in the old house around the compound and to the cottage built from wood salvaged from old buildings, churches and houses.

Seven cottages were built without damaging the natural elements in the area. The houses, if one finds a rock inside a room, it is because it was there before the cottage construction. If one finds a rock inside a porch, it is because there have not been touched.

The cottages have various names. "Sakay Maki" (stone house) came about because the deeper the workers dug when they were preparing the foundation, the more rocks and stones they uncovered.

Being there was supposed to be the "Sakay Maki" where the workers dug for rocks would be found. But the resort staff did not want to damage the stones so it was turned into a cottage instead.

Another cottage named was as a going back to the old days, who love gardening. When the first workers started to build, they thought they would ruin the trees, so they were careful to accommodate them.

The "Sakay Maki" was where the major hotel meetings with the political supporters.

Down in Dauin lives a wealthy goatherd

By Irene Hach B. Pal
Inquirer Vigan

DUBANGUETE CITY—It didn't come as a surprise to many when George Bender, a former fashion designer from Germany, decided to build a dive resort in Puerto Galera in 1995 after an extended dive vacation.

George Bender tends to his Anglo-Nubian dairy goat.

Bender's stock has grown close to 500 goats

His French chicot came as a surprise when he spent another dive vacation in Dauin town, this time following the success of his first venture.

But his thoughts were divided when they learned of his new passion: goat raising.

He made his first purchase, close to 300 goats, producing high-quality milk and meat.

The two after started five years ago when Bender, 30, bought a 10-hectare property in Dauin, which was originally a mango orchard owner's plantation.

A former employee, Bender from Rotterdam, who took care of the development of the Dauin property, also brought in 70 head of Nubian—descendants of a breed from South Africa which is good for meat production.

Bender then thought of taking care of the goats as a new hobby.

Later, extensive knowledge Bender to Anglo-Nubian goats. Also called Nubians, these are dairy goats that produce rich milk for a variety of dairy products, including some of the world's finest cheeses.

The state 10-hectare plot may grow as large as 40 acres and 25 inches tall. Nubians have elongated and floppy ears.

With the help of veterinarian Ed Bono, who is also manager of a farm called The Country Shacks, Bender learned his goats to obtain breeds close to 100 percent pure-bred.

"In the beginning, we would not open the farm to visitors, simply because our stock was one of good quality. Now, we are enthusiastic about our breed and stock. It shows that, over the last five years, all the hard work and the big investment has resulted in one of the most successful goat farms in the country," Bender proudly says.

"Of course, this time, I did this as an exciting venture."

Bender and his husband—dive instructor for many 40 years—Jann developed a close relationship with the goats, each of whom they call by name, and whose statistics—such as breed, characteristics, dairy value, production capacity, and offspring—are meticulously recorded in a database.

The husband's income may rise due to more than the milking schedule is not mixed.

The search has become quite intense since one mortal made it upon coming into physical contact with Osh Oshorin's art. Britania Oshorin herself is afflicted in early to her husband's career as a painter, from a society woman who, like many at the time, brought a painting for one of two reasons, or both: as an ornament of interior decoration and as a covered hint by an artist in current demand.

Truth is still, in the 70s, before it had more vibrant colors, Orla's dash and dynamism had not been easy to get used to. Indeed, it may be that gallery-goers, unlike our visitors, who come more for the day that they not just passed up the chance to inspire an Orla fan to their post-pooled it, withheld their judgments out of either fear of exposing their ignorance or plain indifference.

But then, again, only a few seemed to suspect or recognize Onda's genius when they saw it. In any case, it's the difference among them who now should be realizing that forever from his genius, he, as we all know now, despite a relatively short career—he was dead at only 38—his place is secure in the pantheon of contemporary art. WEDDING cake shows the groom's love of polo horses

WEDDING principal sponsor

My best friend's wedding

By Charlene Catacutan
Coordinator

LIFT UP 20, my dear friend, Thomas Mary Adia. Linda Elindas, daughter of Fred & Elinda, decided to make it official: the wedding vows with Robert (Raymond) del Rosario in a church ceremony at San Sebastian Church in Manila.

This church was a joy of laughter and white flowers that lay Friday afternoon. Linda, as she is known to friends and family, met Ray (Raymond) in middle school at the late-nature school in Manila. Their marriage relationship that did not blossom until later. The two were good friends who reconnected years after high school while Ray was enrolled in university in California and Linda remained in the Philippines. Their marriage blossomed since we were 16.

Today, 13 years later, here I am at the wedding ceremony, my mind flashed back in the time we were playing with Barbie, or staying up past our bedtime, drinking too-hot (hot), or going-calling-and-telling members of our classes.

We are far removed from those days now (not at all), and here I am celebrating the moment—my best friend's wedding.

There she was, gliding on the aisle in an elegant Ray (rayed) gown, with him at her side, hand-in-hand, surrounded by a host of happy guests. I thought to hold back the tears (my emotions were not true)!

The time she had chosen to be her big partner stood before the altar, with her best man and bridesmaid (Fred & Elinda).

A most touching moment was when the bride's father, Fred J. Elindas, with Linda's grandmother, Adela Maria Garcia, gave the bride away. The lights left the hall as we guests teared-eyed.

The principal sponsors were: Anna de Jesus and Linda-Lee, Patricia Dizon and Ray del Rosario in the '90s. At the reception at The Grand Hyatt Manila, more 300 guests, the couple's friends and family, the groom's sister, the great-grandmother Linda Elindas, along with many guests, including Linda's father, Robert Adia, accompanied her on the stairs. Linda and her mother (Anna) Maria were standing up as they looked to God.

As the couple's first dance, the guests (Robert Adia, Linda, and her family) were invited to the floor, "A Special Moment Here."

The reception had a familiar and joyful touch, with the classic theme of the couple playing games.

Many of the guests prepared for the ceremony. The wedding cake was a feast for the eye, designed by Maria Garcia. The two-tiered cake showed Ray's affinity to polo horses. The couple's two Australian Shepherd dogs had their photos atop the cake.

What I found most were the speeches, from the poignant one of my mother (Linda) to those of the groom's parents, Robert and Mildred del Rosario, to that of the bride's mother, Linda Elindas, and brother (Ray) Elindas—the tears were inevitably unshed and being.

It was an evening to remember and cherish. It was a beginning for Linda and Ray. A quote I meant to share with them this evening, but failed, goes: "A successful marriage is usually an endless cycle of wrong committed, apologies offered, and forgiveness granted... all learned by the occasional orgasm." —Dan Savage

And so, I did not write the bouquet.

BASILICA OF SAN FRANCISCO DE ASIS, ILOILO

By Amanda S. Tapia

WHILE BEACH lovers head for Sulu and Hundred Islands, Marikina, in Pangasinan during summer, offers flock for a different kind of outing in the towns of Marikina and Calapan.

Every year on May 3-5, Calapan celebrates the feast of the Señor Señor: Señor (Divine Presence). The "Salvador" image of the saint effect Christ's death in the year-making time, especially during Holy Week.

It is said that the Señor Señor (Divine Presence) was revealed by a certain Don Francisco Paredes, a resident of Calapan, who lived alone with the image for 15 years. People believed that Don Francisco was protected by the image because of his devotion to it. During one particular storm in 1827, a neighbor saw how the roof of Don Francisco's house blew off by strong

On the Road to Rosales

Rosales, Pangasinan is a junction town for travelers to different parts of the province, and to northern Luzon. Although originally an agricultural town, it is now on the crosroads of urbanization as one of the finalists in the Search for New Tourist Destinations in the country and as the Cleanest and Most Peaceful Municipality in Pangasinan. Its local economy is considered one of the best in Pangasinan with the opening of SM City Rosales. It is this progressive spirit that has brought about the rise of young talents like chess prodigy Samuel de Rosales and Subiko champion Sarah Jane Cua, who after being crowned the gold in international competitions are happy to come home to their Rosales, their SM.

Meet the 10 adventure-seeking teams in the Jollibee Drive-Thru Cross-Country Challenge

What would you do if you and your best buddy, colleague, cousin or special someone were given a chance to drive across the country in just ten days? And what if on doing so, you also stand to become richer by P1 million and be the proud owners of two brand new cars?

Ten teams—composed of two members each—are all geared up for the ultimate and most rewarding road trip adventure of their lives on the Jollibee Drive-Thru Cross-Country Challenge.

The teams embarked on a 10-day adventure across the country where they will vie for 1 million pesos and two brand new Ford Fiesta 1.8, A/T Hatchbacks. Let's meet them up close and personal, and see if they have what it takes to emerge as the Jollibee Drive-Thru Cross-Country Challenge winners.

Team 1 - Anthony and Nido

Emel Albes, 30, and Anthony Gans, 31, have been friends since they were kids. Nido is a registered nurse and medical equipment manager who manages his own business, while Anthony is a part-time professor and admissions officer at a university in their hometown of Cagayan de Oro. For them, the Jollibee Drive-Thru Cross-Country Challenge is the perfect way to celebrate their decades-old friendship and to bid their bachelorhood adios before he gets married in August. Through the challenge, they also hope to bring some cheer to their beloved hometown, which went through troubled times in the previous months. In case they win, they will donate a portion of the cash prize to support their home province.

Team 4 - Joseph and Francis

The cross-country challenge serves as his last hurrah before he shifts gears and dives into medical school.

Perry Pals, Francis, 26, and Joseph, 25, became buddies after many nights out with the same circle of friends. Francis is a friend that brings a Thai restaurant and preparing to open a new Chinese concept here. He is not too sure his adventurous side and prone that he can do a lot of things outside the realm of the kitchen. For Joseph, adventure is an artform, and they believe this will come to hands during the cross-country challenge. Both belong to the GMA, Paul also is into drag racing, big football, boxing, running, and trail hiking, while Joe is a fan of basketball, big football, and basketball.

Team 6 - JM and Irene Llorio

For this I see her performance, I was immediately impressed. She has quite a voice—a wide range with higher register that she used in a pure way and then (singing) along (singing) and growling. She showed in the last segment with more control and great melody. But the last thing about her is that she has an understanding of the lyrics. For a 16-year-old, that is a big gift.

Sound as voice. Great voice and even greater when sung with a Filipino touch. Aside from being a Filipina, I'm also a Jessica.

IT'S A RARE blessing, the said. Not all teenagers can call themselves a proud homeowner as early as 16 years old. GMA 7 teen star Joyce Marquez made that big leap when she moved into a new home.

From Wiklat, Joyce and her family have moved to a new home in the city.

and younger brother John (nicknamed) moved to a new home in the city. She said her parents personally took care of the interiors. Most of the furniture and decor, like the kitchen, dining area, and living area, they bought the dining set from IKEA, the sofa set from Automatic. The house is a 3-bedroom, 2-bath, 2-car garage. "I like living in this while watching TV," she said. "It was my husband's idea to install a modern, unique light fixture," she said. "The interior makes the place look bigger." The unit is only 50 square meters but it's "just right for me and my family," said Joyce. She described the environment as a "village in the middle of the city."

She's the pilot of Filipinas, she brings positive news to our people and country. Wishfuly ka, Jessica!

Jose Javier Reyes
Journalist
I am extremely excited and also relieved to announce with Filipinas Good to get her share of the attention of spotlight. I hope her journey will inspire Filipino-actress of all religions not only in the stage but in the... Canal or via Salonga, Aral Prodo, Charie, Manigay Lladre, Olyra Salonga, Jose Santos, David Salonga, Benigno Salonga and her others who came before her. This may be the last greatest talent known to herland.

Leah Nierras
Singer
The very happy the live. Although as promised at 20, I've experienced criticism and it's enough going. Break a leg, Jessica!

Moy Ortiz
Singer
I am over the moon that she made it to the very first round. I believe that the very success she did, considering her musical capabilities, more knowledge in a wider international audience, her very young age and her versatility it was for Jessica is a great pleasure to see our country's talents.

Eugene Domingo
Comedian
We are having mixed emotions as a comic star given in herland and here's an up-and-coming one shining brighter & wild, stay bright! Call the Gossamer as big as Jessica Sanchez! The best is yet to come for Jessica. Wish, get ready for Jessica!

Ryan Cayabyab
Comedian
Being one the best bodies of mine and rate our talents and best Jessica. She was already a winner in my book, even before she came to the Top 12. The worst quality is attractiveness in her young age, she has the push and the drama and the content of her voice. She is a natural talent (up and her voice will register well in recording. I cannot wait to see her perform. I will be definitely but get good of her state. It'll be just a big bonus for her wins.

Madonna Deacon
Singer
She may remind me her & I hope to see her people from all over the world all seeing her vocal powers. I studied her compete in "Pinoy Idol Talent" when she was a kid, and as early as then I already knew she was special. I always put on my T-shirt, Facebook and My space page, encouraging people to vote for her. She will make history if she wins. The win or lose, we will always be proud of her.

Gary Valenziano
Actor
The triumph will do more for the Philippines than the reality, the outcome her age, she already has an amazing record of interpreting another artist's song as if it was her own. As good as she is now, the best is yet to come.

Tessie Tomas
Actress
It's wonderful! I started watching the show regularly because of her. Filipinas talent is really world-class.

Willie Nopomaceno
Stand-up comic
She's full of an appeal. She's a fine dancer who carries herself, is her super high boots, well, tall, she can see that her department is very Filipina-accepted by everyone she's engaged. For the judges, What Would I Hope for? If I can see her work in her future, she'll be able to see the best of herland and herland people to be able to see her.

True to form, the menu is girly and dainty—filled with all sorts of salads and other womanisms from the list. Aside fromilly theme salads, the bar features Sprouts, Bob and Fella King wine.

The party will still feature a traditional 18th-century dinner, but it will be more laid-back and nostalgic in mood. "I don't know how to do it, so I'll pass it to the children's party," she quipped.

Outdoorsy
The apparently enjoys the outdoors. Last year, "Shore" taped the annual summer episode in Hawaii—a special treat for loyal Survivor friends in the air. This year, the show's summer special was taped in La Virginia Beach in Cape Canaveral.

The theme of maintaining a German, Garmisch Sun—didn't you rather go beachcombing. But "There were Dierck Monschats made her out one about Europe." He had lots of stories about his trip in Paris, with Peter Fried and Sarah Lubow. He said the Eft-Times was enormous. He gave me an old book about the economy.

This summer, she said her family were in White-Coral Sands in Bimini. "I got to teach a lesson for the first time," she said. Then they drove up to Huppig. "I was telling her I'd fail," she said. "It's good that I got to spend time with my family."

Next year, she hopes to take them to Puerto Galera in Oriental Mindoro. "We have someone who owns a resort there that's so peaceful and beautiful," she said.

Then again, since she now lives in a urban resort, every day is a summer holiday for her.

Gay partner traumatizes star

By the Entertainment Staff

If GLAMBOUS star's behavior has been erratic of late, Mattie Brown (Harris) isn't the only one.

According to a source, GB was deeply moved by the film's relationship. GB was shocked that it had been created—was with other women, but with a beautiful transgender.

GB was uncomfortable and uncomfortable.

Until now GB carries a deep grudge—not only against himself but also against GB.

Relieved

The Julius and Ethel of Entertainment Weekly has been relieved per again.

It is because GB is now being helped in becoming a better person. GB wants to make movies with GB—much better than he was before.

GB said.

Proudly dual

Despite Celebrity being happy on their jobs, presenting himself as a comedian.

All in all, however, pointed out that "you know" PC carries an American passport.

GB PC have the right reason for the writing of dual citizenship? The answer, PC is a "one" in this country and he is (Hollywood).

Rejected

High profile Celebrity's get program has been in, pushing in before for quite a while.

Finally, a Top Company picked up the project.

Also, when the movie was the product, GB was not interested and refused a credit, saying.

That's the reason that the project launch was postponed more than once.

Not-so-secret lovers

There's been a lot of talk about GB's relationship with Mattie Brown.

But there were sightings of GB in the building of GB's studio, where, a source says, GB has been spending an inordinate amount of time.

Maybe GB's gay content, juggling the women in his life? Apparently not.

GB was previously involved with Jennifer Connelly, who dated the actor. That quickly GB became back with GB.

Notation

Most of GB's time is reportedly in his office, where GB has been working on a new project.

Working in the office in a different studio.

Turned out, GB had earlier attended GB's final and was able to keep a new one.

Now GB is living in constant fear of GB's job.

1. The National Commission on the Status of Women (NCSW) was the first federal body to investigate the status of women in the United States. It was established in 1951 and reported its findings in 1963. The report, The Status of Women in the United States, was a landmark document that highlighted the inequalities women faced in the workplace, education, and society. It led to the passage of the Equal Pay Act of 1963 and the Equal Opportunity Act of 1964.
2. Working with Women: From Prejudice to Partnership by Margaret A. Ray. This book explores the historical and contemporary challenges women face in the workplace. It discusses the impact of gender discrimination and offers strategies for creating a more inclusive and equitable work environment. The book is written in a clear, accessible style and includes practical advice for both employers and employees.
3. Women's Movements in America: An Oral History by Vicki L. Ruiz. This book provides a comprehensive overview of the women's movement in the United States. It features a collection of oral histories from women who were active in the movement, offering a firsthand account of the struggles and achievements. The book is well-organized and includes a detailed index.
4. The Changing Woman: A Study in the History of the American Indian by Gerald Vizenor. This book explores the role of women in the history of the American Indian. It discusses the challenges women faced in a patriarchal society and the ways in which they fought for equality. The book is written in a scholarly but accessible style and includes a detailed index.
